SOPHIA UNIVERSITY, JAPAN:

Japanese Studies

Sophia University is ranked one of the top private universities in Japan and is known for its international academic learning environment. Sophia takes its name from the greek meaning of “wisdom” and its Japanese name Jochi Daigaku means “University of Higher Wisdom”. Located in Tokyo, a megacity that invites students to enjoy all the benefits of its state-of-the-art technology, facilities, and infrastructure. Best of all, the city affords an invaluable opportunity to experience a unique culture in which traditional and modern elements intermingle.

Sophia University’s short term Japanese Studies program invites university students from around the world to create a stimulating learning environment to promote globalisation and diversity.

Sophia University’s Short Term Programs enable participants to look at Japan from many different perspectives to study, discuss, and reflect on Japan’s role in the world. Students directly experience many aspects of Japanese culture and society and witness the myriad ways in which the cultures of the world are reflected in the maze-like urban landscape of Tokyo.

Program Details

Sophia University Short Term program is a four week program.

At the end of four weeks you will have:

- Japanese language skills
- Skills in cross-cultural communication
- Asia intelligence
- Extensive in-depth learning through participation in workshops, lectures, and public presentations
- Experienced cultural immersion in Japanese society in one of the megacities of the world

The program consists of three courses and you can choose to study a minimum of two courses and a maximum of three. Each course consists of 15 x 90 minute sessions, as well as many cultural tours. The course has been specifically designed so that students will learn about Japan both inside and outside the classroom.

Japanese Language: Designed for students whom have no knowledge of Japanese, the aim of the course is to enable students to begin communicating in Japanese through learning sentence structures, vocabulary, common expressions, and strategies for daily conversations. The course will also introduce the Japanese writing system at a beginners' level. Students will practice their language skills with native Japanese students of Sophia University through the "Language Exchange Program".

Japanese Business and Economy —This course will provide students with an overview of the development of the Japanese business world and economy and an analysis of Japan's challenges and opportunities the "Asian Century".

Media and Contemporary Issues in Japan—This course will introduce students to significant social issues in Japan and how they are reported. Examining the complexity of the nature and background of media, students will be equipped to think critically about the role media plays in raising awareness of and resolving the social issues.

To explore a different country and all it has to offer and learn a different culture and language and to make international friends—it was truly incredible and unforgettable!
