

Bounmy

“ Though our individual efforts might not bring significant changes, we should keep trying at the individual and institutional levels, with meaningful participation from communities.

Key values

Optimistic that individual action can drive change

Distinguishing leadership style

Leads by example

Exemplary action

Involves local community in decision-making

Illustrating outcome

Changes in people's awareness about climate-resilient WASH

BOUNCHAN

“ Climate change used to scare me, but I've learned we can each make a difference, even in small ways. Coping with climate change is the work of all, and disadvantaged people need more attention.

Key values

Courage to persist in the face of uncertainty

Distinguishing leadership style

Risk-taking leadership, acting despite his fears and limitations

Exemplary action

Prioritises vulnerable populations

Illustrating outcome

Improvements in resilient WASH services

KONGLA

“ Climate change is a serious issue, and local government must act alongside communities. I want to see more government involvement, so I am driving that change.

Key values

Strong sense of agency and initiative

Distinguishing leadership style

Persuasive and confident

Exemplary action

Increases climate resilience advocacy, budgeting and planning

Illustrating outcome

Changes in local government practices

Sisomephone

“ I do not leave behind the disadvantaged groups. I pay special attention to marginalised people because they should get help first.

Key values

Social justice and feminist values

Distinguishing leadership style

Empathetic and caring

Exemplary action

Places the vulnerable at the centre

Illustrating outcome

Increased participation of women