What is the UTS Indigenous Staff Development Career Advancement Program?

The UTS Indigenous Staff Development Career Advancement Program is an initiative of the Wingara Indigenous Employment Strategy to assist Indigenous staff to advance their careers.

The Program assists Indigenous staff at UTS to apply for funding from the Wingara Indigenous Employment Strategy's budget, to:

- attend conferences related to their area of work, study, or research;
- present research papers at conferences and workshops;
- prepare final research manuscripts to be published in refereed journals; or
- upskill your current skills in areas relevant to improving employability.

The Wingara Indigenous Employment Strategy has a commitment to the retention and career progression of its current Indigenous employees. The Strategy includes initiatives that aim to enhance the current model of staff progression and retention at UTS, through career planning for Indigenous staff, and by promoting opportunities for staff that aims to advance their careers.
